Report

Session Objectives

The primary objective of the session was to familiarize pupil teachers with the professional processes of museum curation, exhibition development, and object care. It aimed to bridge the gap between classroom history and practical heritage preservation by demonstrating how museums function as active educational spaces. Additionally, the event sought to equip future educators with the knowledge to effectively curate historical narratives and integrate them into their teaching methodologies.

Event Overview

The History Club of the Humera Khan College of Education hosted a virtual expert session titled "Curating the Narrative: The Art of Gallery Management" on July 4, 2026. The lecture took place from 11:00 AM to 12:00 PM as part of an ongoing initiative presented by the Citi-CSMVS Museum on Wheels. Students gathered collectively in the college classroom to view the live online broadcast, which was organized under the guidance of Incharge Faculty Dr. Varsha Maru.

Session Highlights

Dr. Mrinalini Pathak, Curator of Miniature Paintings and Manuscripts at CSMVS, served as the expert lecturer for the informative event. She provided the pupil teachers with exclusive insights into professional museum practices, detailing the intricacies of exhibition development, object care, and heritage preservation. During the presentation, students were shown virtual walkthroughs and historical visual references of the Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj Vastu Sangrahalaya on the projector, bringing gallery management concepts to life.

Participant Engagement

The classroom saw excellent attendance, with students actively engaging with the virtual lecture from their desks. Dr. Varsha Maru was present on-site to facilitate the session, ensuring a smooth technical setup and maintaining an interactive academic environment. The successful integration of digital presentation platforms aligned perfectly with the college's vision of shaping future educators to shoulder the responsibilities of global citizenship.

Learning Outcomes

By the conclusion of the lecture, students acquired a comprehensive understanding of the meticulous work required behind the scenes to preserve and display cultural heritage. The pupil teachers learned how to integrate museum-based knowledge and historical storytelling into their future classroom pedagogies. Furthermore, the session cultivated a deeper appreciation for heritage preservation, empowering the attendees to utilize museum resources effectively in their educational careers.
